

Iran's Intelligence Ship 'Zagros' Joins to the Fleet

Iran's Navy Commander, Amir al-Harami, announced that the 'Zagros' intelligence-warfare destroyer has joined the fleet and is ready for service.

Iran's Navy Commander, Amir al-Harami, announced that the 'Zagros' intelligence-warfare destroyer has joined the fleet and is ready for service. He mentioned that the ship is the latest and most advanced in the fleet, and it is equipped with various weapons and equipment, including helicopters and missiles. He also mentioned that the ship is currently in the Persian Gulf and is conducting operations in the region.

Amir al-Harami also mentioned that the 'Zagros' is a multi-mission ship, capable of performing a variety of tasks, including intelligence gathering, warfare, and support. He emphasized that the ship is a significant addition to the Iranian Navy's capabilities and is a testament to the country's technological and industrial progress.