

Iran's Rising Defense Exports; Local Simurg Aircraft

Iran's International Aviation and Space Fair, held in Tehran, was a significant event for the defense ministry. The Simurg aircraft, a light-weight, high-speed aircraft, was showcased at the fair.

Iran's defense exports have been rising steadily, according to a report by the defense ministry. The report, published in the newspaper 'Arman News', states that the defense ministry has been working to improve the quality and reliability of its defense exports. The Simurg aircraft, a light-weight, high-speed aircraft, was showcased at the fair.

General Aziz Nasrzade, the head of the defense ministry, said that the Simurg aircraft is a significant achievement for Iran's defense industry. He said that the aircraft is a result of the ministry's efforts to improve the quality and reliability of its defense exports. The Simurg aircraft is a light-weight, high-speed aircraft, and it is designed for use in a variety of roles, including reconnaissance and attack.
